How To Make People Believe
What You Say About Your Faith

I would like to share an experience I had this week with a large, electronics store located in New York City. This store has a tremendous inventory, great prices, free shipping and great service. Their motto is "Principles Over Profits: We believe in making customers, not sales." I have purchased several items from this company in the past, and the motto seemed to describe them well.

This store is also owned by Hasidic Jews, and their retail store was shut down for an extended period of time by the Mayor of New York City. They are still recovering, but they do have a very strong presence in internet sales that has probably let them survive as a company. They have clearly taken a pretty big hit in lost sales.

Well ... I tried to buy something from them last week (Saturday, September 26), and they would not let me make an electronic order until 6:00pm today. I don't mean that they accepted an electronic order and promised to fulfill after the Sabbath was over. I mean they refused to have any orders submitted. It would have been very easy to rationalize that allowing orders to be submitted did not violate their laws for observing the Sabbath, but they clearly did not do so. It is obvious to me that they, indeed put "Principles Over Profits".

So, am I suggesting that we consider Hasidic Judaism? NO, I AM NOT! I am suggesting that the Lord spoke to me through David's Bible study of Revelation concerning remembering the Cross on a daily basis, and that He reinforced it through the policies of a non-Christian company. If we remember the cross on a daily basis, the world cannot fail to notice.
